2. Emergency Loan Program

The School of Law has established an emergency student loan program available to all currently enrolled full-time law students, in good academic standing with a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.00. The loans have an interest rate of 6%, are limited to $500.00, and must be repaid within 90 days. A student may have only one emergency loan at a time.

Students requesting an emergency loan must complete an application form, available in Room 105. Completed applications will be reviewed by the Associate Dean for Student Affairs. For the purposes of qualifying for an emergency student loan an "emergency" shall be defined as "a sudden state of financial need relating to or impacting on the education of a law student."

Loan requests are granted only for educational related expenses. After the application has been approved, necessary forms are prepared and the student may take them to the Office of Student Loan Accounting at 516 Main Street, where a check will be prepared and given to the student.

Should a student have an outstanding emergency loan balance when a federal student loan is received, the Office of Student Loan Accounting will request authorization to deduct the outstanding balance from the federal loan monies. It is the responsibility of the student to make sure that the loan is paid off no later than the date due.

Emergency loans are available during the fall and spring semesters and during summer school if the student is enrolled. However no emergency loans will be made during the period between semesters.

D. Pro Bono Program

Started in 1989, the USC Pro Bono Program is the first voluntary pro bono program in a US law school. The Pro Bono Program is open to ALL USC law students who are interested in volunteering in the community.

The goals of the Program are:
- to provide opportunities for skills enhancement and career development;
- to involve law students in the volunteer programs of the community; and
- to foster the ethic of professional commitment to those who are unrepresented.

The range of volunteer opportunities is expansive and includes legal and non-legal projects. Due to the constantly changing nature of the volunteer opportunities, students are encouraged to check the Law school homepage for details and an enrollment form. http://www.law.sc.edu/probono/
The Volunteer Opportunities listed on the web are linked to a job description outlining the benefits and responsibilities for each activity as well as the core competencies and skills that could be attained by volunteering for that project.

The ABA recommends that all attorneys provide 50 hours of pro bono service to the unrepresented and although law students are not technically required to follow this rule it is highly recommended that every student start off their professional careers on the right foot. A personal goal of 50 hours annually of pro bono work is quite easily achievable and has proven to bring great satisfaction and well being to those students who strive to set the bar high. To assist in keeping track of this goal the Pro Bono Program has developed an online web-based time and reflection collection program entitled M.Y. Pro Bono. (Managing Your Pro Bono)

The Pro Bono Board is a select group of Law Students who have demonstrated their commitment to the Pro Bono Program and volunteerism. They serve as spokespeople and recruiters as well as provide ongoing support to the overall operation. The past Pro Bono Board selects new Pro Bono members each spring. Selection is based first and foremost on a demonstrated commitment to the goals of the Pro Bono Program. All students are encouraged to contact any member of the Board for more information. Email addresses are on the homepage. In addition bulletin boards on the first and second floor list the Board members.

Annually the Pro Bono Program Board honors the top volunteers in the Law School. The description and criteria for the Hugh Willcox Volunteer of the Year and the Outstanding Pro Bono Service Awards are located on the homepage. Recently an award was created to recognize the pro bono efforts of a student organization.

The Pro Bono Program recently celebrated its 25th Anniversary highlighted by a blog with videos and stories. The participants linked their Law School pro bono experience to their current practice. If you need a bit of inspiration check it out! The Pro Bono Program works to connect the knowledge of the classroom to the real world of your community. Start your journey by dropping in to Room 233 or browsing the web; either way we look forward to sharing your experience.

E. Student Disability Services

The Law School Office of Student Affairs of the law school works with the university Office of Student Disability Services to provide services and accommodations to meet the varying needs of law students with disabilities. The Office of Student Disability Services facilitates academic accommodations for students with documented physical, medical, sensory, and psychiatric disabilities. Disability Services also facilitates academic accommodations for students with documented learning disabilities and attention deficit disorder. These services and accommodations are in accordance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990. Section 504 states, in part, that “no otherwise qualified handicapped individual. . . shall, solely by reason of his/her handicap, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance. . .”

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) states, in part, that “an individual with a disability” is a person who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits a “major life activity”, has a record of such an impairment or is regarded as having such an impairment. The ADA requires that public entities “must ensure that individuals with disabilities are not excluded from services, programs, and activities because buildings are inaccessible”.

Students seeking an accommodation need to register with the Office of Student Disability Services before an accommodation will be given at the law school. You can contact them via their website:  http://www.sa.sc.edu/sds/.

Services and accommodations provided by the Office of Student Disability Services may include, but are not limited to:

- Assessment of needs for law school
- Assistance with examinations
- Facilities accommodations assistance
- Liaison service with numerous organizations offering services for disabled persons
- Pre-admission counseling
- Providing readers, interpreters, or note takers

The Office of Student Disability Services notifies the Law School Office of Student Affairs regarding a student’s disability and recommended accommodation. Upon official notification of a disability, it is the Law School’s mission to provide reasonable accommodations and services to assist students with accommodations in successfully completing a rigorous law program. Students are informed that while reasonable accommodations are available for disabilities, they are held to the same academic performance standards as any other student.

At the law school, the names of the students with accommodations are not disclosed to faculty members. For purposes of the exam accommodations, faculty members have two suggested options regarding their administration. The faculty member may provide the Office of Student Affairs with a copy of the exam to be administered or they may require the student to come to the examination room to hear the instructions and receive a copy of the exam. In either option, the Office of Student Affairs works to maintain anonymity of the student. The Law School Office of Student Affairs will notify the student of the time and place for the examination. In such cases, the Director of Student Affairs will notify the faculty member that a student will be taking an examination under accommodation. However, the faculty member will not be provided any information that will identify the student or any information explaining why the accommodation will be granted.

The law school Office of Student Affairs will provide necessary assistance for the students with exam accommodations. For instance, if a student needs a reader, the Director of Student Affairs will arrange for a reader and a place for the exam to be administered.

The Anonymous Examination Grading System (AEGS) is normally the preferred method of examination administration. However, it is not mandatory. When a professor uses the AEGS system the professor and Office of Student Affairs will make every effort to preserve the anonymity of the student taking an examination under an accommodation, and the professor will make no effort to obtain the identity of any student taking an examination under accommodation.

It is the policy of the Law School and the University of South Carolina to provide students a prompt and suitable method for resolving complaints alleging any action prohibited by the U.S. Department of Education regulations implementing Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended (29 U.S.C. 794) and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990.

Procedures:

1. Student complaints of discrimination based on a disability must be forwarded in writing to the Director of Educational Support Services, 106 LeConte, Columbia, SC 29208.

2. A complaint must be filed in writing within 15 working days after the complainant becomes aware of the alleged violation. If a complainant needs assistance composing the complaint, appropriate assistance may be arranged through the Office of Educational Support Services.

3. An appropriate investigation shall follow the filing of the complaint. The investigation shall be conducted by the Director of Judicial Affairs, and may be informal but thorough, affording all interested persons and their representatives, if any, an opportunity to submit evidence relevant to the complaint.

4. A written determination as to the validity of the complaint and a description of the resolution, if any, shall be issued by the Director of Judicial Affairs and forwarded to the complainant as soon as the investigation is concluded, normally no later than 30 working days after the filing of the complaint.

5. The Section 504 and ADA coordinator for students on the Columbia campus shall maintain the files and records of Section 504 and ADA complaints filed by students at U.S.C. Columbia. In addition, such files and records as are necessary for system-wide Section 504 monitoring and reporting purposes shall be maintained by the Office of Equal Opportunity Programs.

6. The complainant may request a reconsideration of the case if dissatisfied with the resolution. The request for reconsideration must be made in writing to the Office of Equal Opportunity Programs, 1600 Hampton Street, University of South Carolina, Columbia, SC 29208 within 10 working days after the complainant’s receipt of notification of the resolution.

7. The right to a prompt and equitable resolution of a complaint filed hereunder shall not be impaired by the person’s pursuit of other remedies such as the filing of a Section 504 and ADA complaint with the appropriate federal department or agency.

Once approved by the Office of Student Disability Services, the student will meet with the law school Office of Student Affairs to discuss processes of the law school:

- If an exam is take home, the allotted time will be determined by the Office of Student Affairs, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and the faculty member.

- The start time of the exam will be determined by the Office of Student Affairs, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and the faculty member.
